SNOWDEN REJECTS PROPOSAL

Shatters Hope of Hague Conference For Compromise on Reparations Plan

Compromise Offers But Little Advance on Previous Offers, Says British Chancellor

The Hague, Aug. 23.—Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, this afternoon rejected the new compromise proposals offered him by the other four principal creditor powers to satisfy the British demands for an increased share of German reparations.

Hopes which had been revived that the conference might yet surmount all obstacles and finally agree on adoption of the Young Plan were shattered by the rejection on the part of the British Chancellor.

Right Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, after considering verbal proposals presented by Premier Jaspard of Belgium last night, and a further detailed offer made him this morning, consulted his colleagues and decided that the offers represented little advance on those already rejected, and could not be accepted.

The basis of the arrangement which the other four principal creditor powers are seeking with the British is the increase of British receipts through the cession by Italy of part of her share of the annuities and by France of her interest in the balances available from the Dawes annuities this year which had been earmarked for the smaller powers and by the transfer by Germany of part of her conditional annuities to unconditional ones.

France and Italy would compensate the smaller powers by revision of their debts.

Mr. Snowden held that the offers of the four powers with a contribution by Germany in an increase of the unconditional annuities, fell far short of the estimate made last evening. It was said in French and Belgian circles that their offer represented at least seventy-five per cent of the amount the British demanded. Mr. Snowden, however, contended that it was worth much less.

Pecos, Texas, Aug. 23.—Entrants remaining in the women's national air derby were reduced to sixteen to-day when Florence Lowe Barnes, of San Marino, Cal., decided to withdraw after a thorough inspection of her damaged plane showed it could not be repaired in time for her to overtake her competitors.

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 23.—All of the contestants in the women's national air derby who left Fort Worth this morning had landed at Tulsa, the noon control point, at 12:45 p.m. to-day. Ruth Elder, who lost her way and landed at Bragg, Okla., arrived here at 12:42:05 p.m.

CROWD WATCHES DUEL TO DEATH

Two Georgia Farmers End Each Other's Lives With Shotguns

Clover, Ga., Aug. 23.—Two men who met in the centre of town by tyst to fight a duel with shotguns, shot each other to death to-day. It was the culmination of a father's objection to a married man's purported attentions to his daughter.

The duel, witnessed by a gathering of townspeople marked the end of months of enmity between Pat Huddleston fifty-three, and Marcus Brown, forty-two, both farmers. The trouble between the men was climaxed by the second alleged elopement of Brown, who was the father of eight children, with Huddleston's daughter.

A warning to Brown caused him to challenge his son-in-law, the girl's father, Brown fired upon him while the other sat with his gun across his lap. Mortally wounded, the father shot back killing Brown instantly. The daughter involved is twenty-five and divorced.

SOVIET PLANE SOARS AGAIN

Aviator Who Crashed Near Siberia Tries New Attempt For New York

Thursday on a new attempt to reach America by the same route. He planned several stops, the first possibly at Krasnoyarsk, 2,000 miles away.

His new plane, like that he cracked up at Chita after crossing most of Asia, was called the Land of the Soviets.

The aviator said if his flight was successful, it was proposed to establish in 1931 an air line between Russia and the American west coast as a continuation of Transiberian service.

MANCHURIA ALARMED BY WAR PLANS

Conference of Generals Gravely Views Russia's Move Along Border

Railways Crowded With Troop Trains Carrying Chinese Soldiers to Front

London, Aug. 23.—Manchurian railways yesterday were crowded with troop trains carrying Chinese soldiers to the front. Dispatches from many unofficial sources told of border activities by soviet patrols and of a threatened general offensive against Harbin, centre of the Chinese Eastern Railway system, which is the subject of the present dispute.

Harbin, with the railroad turning southeast to Vladivostok and also northwest through Manchuli to Siberia, is exposed on the northeast to possible gunboat attacks on the Sungari River.

GENERAL'S CONFERENCE A conference of generals, called by Marshal Chang Hsueh Liang at Mukden, decided to dispatch several additional brigades to the northern front.

So gravely did the conference view the crisis that it was decided to withhold twenty per cent of the salaries of all Manchurian officials to purchase war materials. In addition to a division of troops with a machine gun corps and several batteries of artillery sent to Harbin, 50,000 soldiers from Fengtien started for the western border post to Manchuli.

TOWNS OCCUPIED Reports coming by way of Japan were that a considerable body of Russians had already occupied the Chinese town of Mishaan and were penetrating further northward of Lake Hanka.

MOSCOW DENIED Moscow, Aug. 23.—Denial was issued in Moscow to-day of reports abroad that Soviet forces have invaded Manchuria.

DEAD HEART IS MADE TO BEAT Princeton Professor Gives Demonstration Before Boston Congress

Boston, Aug. 23.—A dead heart was set beating rhythmically by super-sound waves in a demonstration by Professor E. Newton Harvey, Princeton University, before the Thirteenth International Physiological Congress.

No magician could have set before an audience a more breath-taking trick than the quiet, straightforward scientific demonstration exhibited to the audience.

Dr. Harvey placed in a glass tube, a heart removed from a turtle, or a frog. Without any audible sound, the ventricles began to beat.

Professor Harvey said it would not be possible to resuscitate a person whose heart had stopped, by means of the super-sound waves since they are very readily absorbed by tissues and would not penetrate the chest cavity.

Italy Asks Delay In Schneider Cup Race

Rome, Aug. 23.—Italy to-day officially asked England to postpone the date of the blue ribbon Schneider Cup races scheduled to be held in England September 6-7 because of the death of Captain Giuseppe Motta, member of the Italian Cup team and vice-marshal of the School of High Velocity at Desandino.

Mexico City, Aug. 23.—Travelers arriving at Torreon, Coahuila, from San Juan de Guadalupe, Durango, to-day said that the chief of police of San Juan and several residents were killed and others wounded in an attack by marauders. The attack was said to have occurred Saturday night when several men raced into Central Plaza in an automobile firing at random. At the same time a hundred men appeared on foot, shooting down pedestrians.

After several hours' looting the marauders freed the inmates of the jail, killing the police chief, and then departed carrying off several prisoners who were released a few miles from town.

RICHFIELD OIL PLANS BIG TANKS AT OGDEN POINT

Company to Enter Victoria; Ocean Vessels May Refuel Here

The Richfield Oil Company, wholesale and retail gasoline and oil distributors, which recently entered the Vancouver territory with distributing stations, is now preparing to enter the Victoria field, it was learned to-day.

Richfield will establish big oil tanks near the Ogden Point docks, it is said. These oil tanks will not only supply the retail trade here, but will make possible the refueling of oil burning ships at the Ogden Point docks.

At present it is necessary for big vessels to go to Esquimalt harbor or Vancouver or Seattle to refuel with crude oil. With the crude oil tanks at Ogden Point, ocean vessels will be able to refuel here while they are loading grain and lumber. It was explained to-day that this will make it unnecessary for some ocean vessels to go on to Seattle and Vancouver, and the result will be that they will buy their ship's supplies in Victoria instead.

It made directly for the northeast, and in seven minutes had disappeared in the direction of the open Pacific. Aboard were a crew of forty-one, including one new member and a passenger list of nineteen, a total of sixty persons.

Tokio, Aug. 24 (Saturday).—The world-voyaging dirigible Graf Zeppelin radioed here at 1 a.m. to-day (11 a.m. E.S.T., Friday) that she was approximately 600 miles almost due east of the Kasumigaura naval base here, from which she started at 3.13 p.m. yesterday.

SIXTY MILES AN HOUR The position given by the Graf Zeppelin was 36 north latitude and 151 east longitude, which placed her directly over the steamer lane to Seattle, Wash. The dirigible had averaged about sixty miles an hour during the nine hours and forty-seven minutes she had been journeying across the Pacific Ocean since leaving Los Angeles, 5,470 miles away, which she was expected to reach in about 100 hours. This would bring her to the California city at 2.13 a.m. Tuesday, Pacific time.

RIDES THROUGH STORM Tokio, Aug. 24 (Saturday).—The Graf Zeppelin, bound for the Pacific coast of America, wireless to Japanese Government radio stations that she had triumphantly ridden through a sudden violent wind and lightning squall while cruising eastward last night (Friday).

Portland, Ore., Aug. 23.—Dick Rankin, Portland, listening a taper wing Waco, took off from Swan Island airport at 11:30 o'clock this morning for Walla Walla, Wash., the first stop in the Portland-to-Cleveland air derby.

Three minutes later T. A. Wells, Wichita, Kas., in a specially equipped Travelair plane made a perfect take-off despite the slippery field and fine drizzle which failed to dampen the spirits of the large crowd of spectators.

W. H. Emery Jr., Bradford, Pa., in another Travelair, and Charles W. (Speed) Holman, Chicago, in a Laird Speedster, followed at three-minute intervals.

A slight delay caused by the landing of another plane kept Snyder Hall, St. Louis, driving a Travelair with special cowling, on the ground until 11:42 o'clock. His plane rocked slightly to one side as he left the field, but straightened after it mounted a hundred feet.

The plane piloted by Clarence F. Bates, Milwaukee, Wis., which was to have followed Hall, remained on the ground because of water in the gasoline.

Lieut. Bev. Clark, Portland, accompanied by Lieut. Robb, Portland, in their Travelair, took to the skies at 11:52 o'clock and were followed four minutes later by Major G. W. Eckerson, Springfield, Ore., in a Waco.

Tex Rankin, Portland aviator in his many-hued Waco with an underslung carriage, was the last to leave the field. He shot his plane across the starting line at 11:58 o'clock.

BEATEN BY THUGS Vancouver, Aug. 23.—Sidney Siewart, forty-five, Seattle, was beaten about the face until he was unconscious and robbed of $117 when set upon by two thugs in the water front district last night, he told police to-day.

LITTLE JOE Lefebvre died first as the clock in the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill boomed out the hour of eight. Twenty-one minutes later Mrs. Viaw followed her lower, crying to see the man who had replaced her husband in her affections, but ignorant of the fact that he had preceded her to death.

Thirteen hundred and eighty-two mourners awaited the ominous raising of the black curtain over the scaffold, painted red, according to an ancient custom of Quebec. It was expected that the execution would occur shortly after midnight, but Hangman Ellis, at the last moment, received from the Provincial Department of Justice unexpected and to what usual after dawn.

PREMIER MacDONALD FLIES TO LONDON Lossiemouth, Scotland, Aug. 23.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to-night received an important message regarding the situation at The Hague conference on reparations, which requires his presence in London, and he will fly to the capital early to-morrow morning.

CANADA SELLING TAX ON MEALS U.S. MORE BEEF AND BEER GETS CONSIDERATION

Second Source of Supply For Both Meats and Cattle This Year

Washington, Aug. 23.—The United States is importing more beef and veal and more live cattle this year than last, according to a report of the United States Department of Agriculture just issued. Supplies of beef and veal in the United States are smaller than a year ago, and prices continue high.

Canada is the second source of supply for both meats and cattle this year, being second to New Zealand in her exports of meats and to Mexico in cattle. Last year Canada exported more cattle than Mexico, but the southern country has now moved into the position it held before the war.

The report notes imports of beef, veal and live cattle amount to about one per cent. of the production of those commodities in the States.

BENNETT VISITS SOUTH SLOCAN

Refining of Copper in Canada Should Be Encouraged, Says Conservative Leader

Trail, B.C., Aug. 23.—A meeting at South Slocan is scheduled for tonight in the speaking itinerary of Hon. R. Bennett in British Columbia. Mr. Bennett left for that point this morning and may stop at one or two places on route.

Speaking here last night Mr. Bennett said, an endeavor being made to develop the refining of copper within Canada should be encouraged. He believed, the opposition emphasized, in a policy of "fair competition" for the industrial development of the products of our mines.

In his trip along the Pacific Coast, Mr. Bennett proceeded, he had observed large quantities of copper concentrates ready to be shipped to Tacoma, Wash., which would provide work for United States workmen. The United States, he observed, was willing to permit the entry of copper ore and blister into that country free of duty, by reason of the fact that the raw product could be finished in their country.

Last year, the opposition chief-tain stated, copper ore and blister to the value of $30,000,000 had been shipped to the United States republic and Canada had bought the finished product back to the amount of $15,000,000, after paying a price of $5 per ton higher than the rate to citizens of the United States.

Hinchliffe Looks For New Levies to Relieve School Taxation

Vancouver, Aug. 23.—Only ruin and chaos will follow a continuation of the present unjust system of taxation in British Columbia for education purposes, it was declared Thursday by Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, who sought suggestions for improving the method of raising school funds, at a conference of the City Council and School board.

Any change made should mean that the natural increase of adult population will provide for the natural increase of school population, the Minister declared. One of the solutions he intends to investigate fully is a tax levied in Quebec of five per cent on all meals served in hotels and restaurants for which more than one dollar is paid.

ONE CENT A GLASS

"Why not put the tax on liquor instead of on meals?" asked Alderman John Bennett.

"I have thought of a levy of one cent a glass on beer," Mr. Hinchliffe replied.

His present campaign, the Minister explained, is not an attempt to get more money, except the natural increase necessitated by the growth of population, but to devise ways of getting more from those who are not now paying for education. Under the present system, the penalty falls on the permanent resident of the Province who owns land here and the transient population pays nothing for education, although many may make use of it for months at a time.

If anyone is to be treated preferentially, he claimed, it should be the land owners. He cited the case of Trail, where he was told that not more than twenty-five per cent of the residents paid direct taxes but where there are so many transients that the rooming house beds "work three shifts a day."

MAKING HEADWAY

RIGHT HONORABLE PHILIP SNOWDEN, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, appears to be making progress at The Hague on the subject of reparations. An offer has been made to him by France, Belgium, Italy and Japan which is said to represent seventy-five per cent of his demands.

These demands, briefly, were as follows:
First—Great Britain to get 45,000,000 marks (about $10,800,000) yearly more than is allotted to her under the Young plan and which Mr. Snowden estimates she should receive under the application of the Spa percentages.

Second—Great Britain to get 80,000,000 marks (about $19,200,000) annually from unconditional German payments.

Third—Reduction in the amounts of German payments in kind; a guarantee against the re-exportation of these payments and an assurance that the international bank will not finance German deliveries in kind in a manner to increase them.

Fourth—Italy to agree to buy a fixed amount of English coal annually.

Mr. Snowden beyond doubt presented a very strong case. He pointed out that when Great Britain went into the war no material British interest was in danger. She entered the war in support of treaty rights and in defence of the safety and security of other countries. She willingly sacrificed her blood and her treasure not in her own interest; as Lord Balfour had said, no vital British interest was threatened. No country was left at the end of the war with such a burden of debt. The amount of the British National Debt was now £7,500,000,000, which was more than double that of any other belligerent nation. She had to provide every day of the year 125,000,000 francs (£1,000,000) for the service of the war debt. Excluding the debt to America, the British National Debt was £6,500,000,000, whereas the French National Debt is 291,000,000,000 francs (£2,328,000,000).

If they were going to talk about sacrifices, he said, he would have to go into the question of debts. At the end of the war Britain's late allies owed her £2,000,000,000, advanced by her to keep their armies in the field. She had made settlements with all of them of a most generous and magnanimous character. She owed America at the end of the war a little less than £1,000,000,000. By the settlement arrived at Great Britain would have to pay over sixty years a total sum of £2,200,000,000, or more than double the amount borrowed from the United States of America.

Mr. Snowden contrasted this with the settlements made by Great Britain with her own debtors and late allies. France's debt to Great Britain was £600,000,000. A settlement had been made by which France paid on a present value basis £227,000,000. The Italian settlement was of a much more generous character, he said. For a debt of $560,000,000 Italy had settled at a present value of £78,000,000, and if the Young proposal about the distribution of the German annuities was adopted Great Britain would sacrifice to Italy another £30,000,000 out of that £78,000,000, thus receiving for a loan which at the time of funding was $560,000,000 no more than £48,000,000. The balance could not be written off. It remained a debt which the British people would have to pay, in the form of interest on the money originally borrowed, which would amount to nearly £60,000,000 a year.

It will be noted that Great Britain has been particularly generous to France and Italy, reducing the former's debt to her by more than sixty per cent, and Italy's by eighty-five per cent. Now she was asked to make further sacrifices. As a matter of fact, France is better able to bear a substantial proportion of the additional amount Great Britain seeks than Britain is to bear the sacrifices she has been called upon to make. Through the depreciation of the franc France reduced her internal debt enormously, while not only has she no unemployment problem, but she actually is importing labor from other countries.

TORONTO'S CONTROVERSY

TORONTO THE GOOD IS IN THE throes of a controversy over the methods employed by the police in breaking up a Communist gathering in Queen's Park about ten days ago. Jack MacDonald, the Communist leader, and his supporters were run out of the grounds, and judging from newspaper reports a number of bystanders were roughly handled.

The Toronto Star claims that the police had no right to resort to methods of this kind in clearing a public park of people, the vast majority of who went merely out of curiosity or to get a little entertainment; that if MacDonald was breaking the law he could have been proceeded against by legal processes; that the incident gave the outside world a wrong impression of the number of Communists in Toronto, which does not exceed several hundred, and that "Cossack tactics" in breaking up their meeting gave them the advertisement they are looking for, and exaggerated their importance.

Other Toronto newspapers, including The Toronto Globe, claim that the police were quite right in the methods they used; that the Communists were preaching sedition; that free speech in their case was dangerous to the public welfare; that the Communists were openly flaunting authority and that the gathering was an incitement to lawlessness and a disturbance of the peace.

Probably there are not enough Communists in Toronto to fill a fair-sized hall. Certainly most people outside of that city would be astonished if there were, for have they not been assured often that Toronto is the most respectable, circumspect and moral community in Canada, and a veritable Gibraltar of loyalty to our institutions? It is unthinkable that the soil of Toronto, the home of The Globe and The Telegram, could nourish such a plant as Communism; that there is anything in the atmosphere of Canada's New Jerusalem stimulating to a doctrine which scorns religious institutions and all their works. Whatever may be the deficiencies of the other—and more wicked—Canadian cities in these respects, we always have believed that Toronto was impregnable established on the hill of the virtues. Yet we must confess to some bewilderment when we see in the newspapers glaring headlines reporting how the police with their trusty truncheons charged upon a Communist gathering in Queen's Park—of all places.

Seriously, it has not been the practice of the authorities in Canadian cities to order their police to break up gatherings of this kind by violent means. A few years ago in Victoria there were frequent street-corner meetings at which sundry speakers would reel off platitudes describing their panaceas for social and economic ills not unlike the stuff MacDonald has been getting off his chest in Toronto. I. W. W. speakers used to give us plenty of that, but they were not regarded as being important enough to bother about, and they faded out of the picture, largely for that reason. After all, the common sense of the public can be relied upon in matters of this kind. And Toronto's public is as intelligent as that of any other city.

This is the attitude of the authorities of London and other large British cities towards soap-box orators who preach Communism in the public places there. They know that the leaders of this movement would like nothing better than to be rushed by the police, so they let them talk away to their heart's content, giving them police protection while they are doing it. Judging by the negligible showing of the Communists in the recent election, this plan seems to work pretty well. There is no chance for Communism in countries where educational facilities are widespread and free, especially when it is in the open where its weaknesses are readily detected by the general public.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE WEST GROWS UP
The Manitoba Free Press

One of the fine things about Western Canada is the sense of living through the beginning of things. The feeling is still strong that this is a land where there is no ancient heritage of blunders and mistakes. The land is ours to possess it, to use it as we will, to make of it something different and better.

But, while that feeling persists to-day, the years are marching remorselessly onwards, and an incident in Calgary recently brought the point home. A gold medal was presented to Edwin Larkin, the oldest ranch hand in Alberta. In 1874, young Larkin, aged twenty-nine, came out from Kilkenny, and got a job as cook on an Alberta ranch outfit. He had never had a frying pan in his hand before. The fact that to-day, at the age of eighty-four, he is looking back on fifty-five years as a ranch cook, is evidence of his adaptability to western life.

Most of the people now living in the West were not born when Larkin flipped his first flapjack. The second and third generations of westerners have now joined the forward march. The excuse of the youth and inexperience of the handling affairs will serve no longer to conceal our shortcomings. The West has a history more than half a century old. It has grown up.

BRITAIN'S BEST LIKED NEWSPAPER
The New York World

C. P. Scott has retired after fifty-seven years as editor of The Manchester Guardian. The control of the paper is undisturbed, for his son becomes the editor and he himself remains as managing director. There is every reason to trust that the noblest journalistic tradition in the English-speaking world will continue unbroken.

C. P. Scott made The Manchester Guardian a standard of journalistic honor, and for that reason its influence on the newspaper profession has been incalculable. By daily example it has affirmed the faith of C. P. Scott that the task of an editor is to understand the other man but none the less to continue saying what he believes. In The Guardian opinion has never been regarded as merchandise, and the truth as C. P. Scott saw it has been printed in fair weather and in foul.

The Guardian, though it has remained loyal to the Liberal minority, though again and again it has championed the outcast, the despised and the hated, is surely the best liked newspaper in all of England. The secret of this paradox is not difficult to fathom. In fifty-seven years C. P. Scott has established the conviction that no point of view will be denied a hearing in his pages, and that to every point of view an editor owes the duty of courteous sympathy. The Guardian is in the literal sense of the word magnanimous. In its long controversial history, whether it won or whether it lost, it has secreted none of the poisons of pettiness; in its intention, in the mastering purpose which animated it, it has spoken more often than any other organ of opinion the ultimate mind of the British people.

A THOUGHT

As arrows are in the hands of a mighty man; so are children of the youth.—Psalms cxviii 4.

A man looketh on his little one as a being of better hope; in himself ambition is dead, but it hath a resurrection in his son.—Tupper.

Loose Ends

Parliament knows its limitations and keeps out of the talks—so democracy is safe—and in Asia Minor it proves more vigorous than ever—with the electors willing to fight for the vote—and the government prepared to prevent them getting it at any cost.

By H. B. W.

THE RECENT decision of the British House of Commons not to have a talk made of itself was very sound. Those who supported the idea said it would encourage interest and respect for Parliament among those not privileged to see it at work, while quite the contrary of course would be the result. It would undermine respect for parliamentary institutions altogether, not because they are unworthy of respect but because they simply would not make successful talks.

AS THE Manchester Guardian points out, "the ordinary meetings of the House are always profoundly disappointing to those who see them for the first time; the smallness of the Chamber, the badness of much of the speaking, the casual coming and going, the feebleness of what are meant to be witty interpolations—all these have an effect only gradually dispersed. On the other hand, a sitting in which all members were self-conscious and on their best behavior would not only be a dismal failure but would be quite worthless historically." And then, what would the rural constituency say when they failed to hear a word from its member about the new post office?

IT IS not fair, it is almost dangerous to introduce parliamentary institutions to the public all at once. They should approach them gradually. The British House is not unique in appearing very dull. So does our own House of Commons and our own Legislature, for that matter, unless you know the ins and outs of it. After a while when you know the members and understand what they mean, instead of what they say, when you can interpret their little family jokes which go over the heads of the uninitiated, when you can interpret Dr. Toimie's chuckle and Mr. Pattullo's smile, then you begin to think that parliament isn't so bad after all. But meanwhile, if you land in on a parliament on an ordinary day when it is plodding along and doing its best without any attempt to impress the electors, then you are likely to conclude that democracy is a hopeless failure. A talk of such proceedings among the thousands who don't know parliament in its better, fireside moments, would probably prove fatal to our present form of government.

AS A matter of fact, almost every day brings some new evidence of the abiding vigor of democracy. If you ever despair of that system of government, if you ever think it is apt to grow dull and crystallize into mere formalities, you should go to Asia Minor. There is the home of the world's most ancient civilization and its youngest democracy, the democracy of the Republic of the Grand Lebanon. They had an election the other day to choose members for the republic's parliament, and so eagerly have the people there embraced democracy, that for more than a month the whole nation quit work. Life became almost unbearable and government virtually ceased.

ONE COULD almost wish, indeed, in these dull times that something of Lebanon's youthful fire still remained with us here. We, in Canada, passed through a great constitutional crisis in the Federal election in 1926 without a tremor. Down in Lebanon the other day, though there was no special issue, only the usual election, they put some pep into their politics. At Zogarta and Beshari, for instance, the government adopted the effective arrangement of preventing the hostile voters from going to the polls, and of course there was a good deal of fighting, for the hostile voters had embraced democracy with considerable determination. In the end four persons were killed, the casualties being divided equally between the government and the hostile voters, the total poll thus being unaffected, and thirty were wounded. At this stage in the fighting one Wadi Tarbieh, the leading government candidate, showed himself a statesman by withdrawing from the election contest and thus quieted down after that.

AT BEIRUT a still more efficient system of voting was inaugurated. An open market was established where ballots were literally auctioned and sold to the highest bidder. One candidate, who needed only one vote for a majority, had to pay 500 gold pounds to get it. On a bull market of this sort the electors, with one vote each for sale, pyramided their incomes rapidly, but some who held out too long were caught on a falling market and lost everything. Among those defeated at the polls was one Habib Pasha el Saad, a former prime minister and an old-time politician. Next day the government appointed him to parliament anyway, for it was determined that the country should not lose his valuable services even if it wanted to. And altogether a pleasant time was had by all in this land where democracy is young and innocent.

EVERY NOW and then something happens to show that the wounds of the Great War are still open. Lucien Louis, of Coulommiers, France, had three sons. All went to the war and all of them were killed, the eldest at a place known as the Ravin des Faussees Cotes. The other day M. Louis sent a long letter to the mayor of Verdun asking him to dispose of his little fortune and bury him beside his boys. Then he made a pilgrimage to the Verdun battlefield, searched out the Ravin des Faussees Cotes and shot himself with an old army revolver. Some American tourists found the old man and the Mayor of Verdun, complying with his request, had him buried beside his boy near the battlefield.

TWO TO FOUR, THE IRRITABLE AGE OF CHILDHOOD

When the mother demands to know why her child whines and cries all day and never seems satisfied, she is noticing what is an almost universal condition of the ages from two to four. Just what is wrong?

Watch yourself and you'll find it easier to understand what makes the child so unhappy and irritable. First of all, the baby has just outgrown babyhood. He has emerged from the period when he was carried around and put to bed for naps and for the night and into his playpen or carriage for his recreation. In fact, the child has been ordered around like a little automaton from birth until now.

At about eighteen months, for the usual child, he blooms into childhood and begins to feel a dawning sense of his own personality and power. He has desires which often run counter to those of his parents. He wants to walk when they find it more convenient to carry him. He likes to feed himself, even if it is a long and messy proceeding. He wants to stand up and walk around his crib when his mother is equally as determined that he shall take a nap. The result is a constant conflict between the sometimes angry parent and the weaker child. There is one thing in this situation which the parent can't control, and that is crying. The child can cry, and does cry, no matter how violently he is told to stop.

This is the so-called negativistic period because the child has suddenly learned the use of "No." He is more than apt to say "No" to almost anything that is asked of him. "Have a nice, cool drink of water," says mother. The child says, "I don't want a drink." Five minutes later he demands a drink. "Why didn't you take it when I offered it to you?" says his exasperated mother. "You just want to make work for me." No, that isn't the reason. He wanted to choose his own time for drinking. He wanted to feel that not his mother's suggestions, but his own desires were being followed. Not that the child thinks this out so clearly, but he shows the course of his reasoning by his actions. He has been listening to "No, no" for months, and now he has discovered that it is just as powerful a weapon for his own use as his parents'. He too, can say "No" and his parents are helpless before it.

When a child reaches this period—some earlier, some later than others—the parent must watch herself carefully to eliminate the useless "don't" and "no" from her commands. Phrase them differently. Make them suggestions and let the child feel that he has made the choice himself. Let him exercise his newly discovered sense of being an independent personality. More liberty is the answer to the child. He is still badly adjusted to his new world if he has to express his personality by crying. Let him express it by harmless "doing." If he wants to walk, let him walk. If he wants to turn on the living-room light, let him do it. Let him feed himself and unbutton his own buttons. Thus we take away most of the irritations which lead him to cry and whine.

Miss F. Muir and R. Acreman Wed

A pretty wedding took place at Knox Presbyterian Church, Sooke, on Wednesday afternoon when Rev. S. Lundy united in marriage Florence, second daughter of Mrs. John S. Muir, and the late John Muir, and Mr. Robert Acreman, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Acreman of Sooke. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, who gave her away, the wedding march from Lohengrin being played by C. W. Heaton, one of the guests.

The bride wore a gown of blush-rose and bouffant skirt, long in the back, and puffed with gold thread on the pointed tiers. With this she wore a mohair picture hat and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, sweet peas, swansons and maidenhair fern.

Miss Vera Mesher, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a dress of peach satin, flounced in tulle with a champagne picture hat, her bouquet being peach gladioli and carnations.

The bridegroom was supported by his brother, John Acreman, Esquimalt chief of police.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Sid Shaw sang "Until," accompanied by C. Heaton.

The reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Muir, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Mrs. J. S. Muir, in navy crepe georgette and hat en suite, and Mrs. Acreman, mother of the groom, assisted the newly married couple in receiving the guests.

The rooms were decorated with masses of gladioli and sweet peas, in tones of peach and pink. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. C. T. Muir, Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. G. A. Acreman, and the Mesdames O. Sutherland, L. Heigsen, V. Heigsen and D. Doran.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Acreman left for a honeymoon in Seattle and Victoria. She wore for traveling a smart suit of sun tan, with hat to match and red fox fur. On their return they will reside in Sooke.

Among the many wedding gifts were a traveling robe from the music staff of David Spencer Limited and silver from the Y.W.C.A.

Victoria guests included Mrs. John Acreman, Mrs. Ben Acreman, Mr. and Mrs. Welton, Mrs. Bayless, the Mesdames Doreen, Bert and Jean Cockin, Mrs. F. Peat, C. W. Heaton, Len Acres, Mr. and Mrs. Mesher, Mrs. S. Shaw and Miss Mesher.

PRINCESS SHOWS DELIGHT OVER UNCLE'S GIFT

London, Aug. 23.—Shrieks of delight were heard coming from Princess Elizabeth's nursery at 145 Piccadilly, the other day. They were caused by the arrival of a very beautiful Japanese rug, which the Duke of Gloucester brought home for her in his "treasure chest." It is a most enchanting rug, of beige grey silk and wool, with a huge splash of scarlet and brown across the centre, where Red Riding Hood is being pursued by the wolf.

The rug was shown to the Duke of York by his brother, and he at once insisted on taking it himself from Buckingham Palace, so that he might have the pleasure of seeing his little daughter's joy when it was opened.

SCIENTIFIC STUDY OF KITCHEN NEEDS

Dr. Louise Stabey Makes Practical Tests in Laboratory

Washington, D.C., Aug. 23.—Scientific study of what the housewife wants and needs in her pantry and kitchen is to be added through the Bureau of Home Economics, to the Federal Farm Board's resources in its effort to aid farmers in the co-operative marketing of their products.

"If the great co-operatives are to succeed, they must know what the woman in her kitchen wants and needs," Dr. Louise Stabey, chief of the bureau, believes.

To furnish that knowledge she hopes to develop the work in the bureau's food utilization and vitamin-testing laboratories and to make available the conclusions of dietary studies, palatability tests and practical experiments in packing and processing foodstuffs to facilitate the housewife's task. At present, she thinks, this is the "weakest link in our chain" for assistance of the co-operatives.

"The home economist definitely has a service to render to the co-operatives," she holds. "Women are the purchasers of foodstuffs. Theirs is the buying power."

Moving about in her national workshop, upstairs and down, she was able to make her ideas visible by pointing to various experiments and citing their value to co-operatives. From ovens at standard heat, savory legs of lamb, each punctuated with an individual thermometer, were emerging, to be served to a committee of five experts who have already tasted and charted 1,500 legs of lamb as to palatability.

"The factors which make up palatability are the tests of production, after all," Dr. Stabey observed.

Analyses which only the nutritionist can make, determine whether diets really supply nutritive needs. We must think in terms of these basic needs in planning our production programmes. In addition, facts and figures on food composition are needed to be used in the fair advertising programmes which we must demand."

In a room where racks of white rats were ranged like book stacks in a library, vitamin tests were in progress, with rice, canned spinach, watermelon, wheat germ and green tea.

Brushing Screens
By August screens are apt to be filled with dust, cobwebs and when rain comes, will spatter the windows. It is a good idea to brush them off thoroughly once a week.

Oil Cloth Sets
There are new colorful oil cloth luncheon sets that have the pattern and look of figured damask. One of these would prove a godsend to mother in a family where there are children.

"Before My Baby Was Born"

"I was in very poor health before my baby was born and had to lie down two hours every day. The doctor said I would never carry my baby as I was too weak. My mother persuaded me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped me wonderfully. My baby is not very big but he is strong and healthy. I recommend the Compound to every woman I hear complaining and when I feel weak I take it again myself. Everybody says they never saw me looking better. I will be glad to answer letters if I can help other women to be strong and healthy again."

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting
Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonard found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in ninety-six per cent, and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from MacFarlane Drug Company or Vancouver Drug Company to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you, or costs you nothing.

Famished Eagles Try To Carry Off Cow

Rock Springs, Wyo., Aug. 23.—Nicholas Kappes, veteran rancher in a landlocked recess twenty-two miles south of here, spent the whole winter mired from the entire world. Rural mail reached him occasionally via neighbors on snowshoes.

"Snow was eight feet deep in many places along the valley. Our 120 head of steers sought shelter in a cave on the side of our lower pasture during the severe storms. It was the hardest winter I can recall in my forty years' residence here," said Mr. Kappes. "Millions of cottontail rabbits perished after the small brush became covered by snow. When the rabbits became scarce, a score of eagles soared over our barnyard in search of prey."

CROWDS SEE DISPLAYS AS RAIN FALLS

Hundreds See Indoor Exhibits
During Inclement Weather;
Fine Displays Shown

Rain yesterday afternoon forced fair-goers indoors and afforded them an excellent opportunity of viewing more carefully the exhibits which have aroused attention all week.

Hundreds, entering the Main Building, stopped to inspect the excellent display of Our Own Brand Butter, being shown by the Central Creameries Limited.

In the first case is shown a tableau, "The Stock's Arrival," representing a nurse on the veranda of a country home. In another is exhibited a butter truck standing in front of a stone wall with a background of trees. Still another interesting carving is the veranda of a golf club, where the players are assembled for nineteenth-hole discussion. Other scenes, one in an office, another in a living-room as well as a huge block of butter have drawn the admiration of the crowds visiting the Exhibition.

On top of the showcases is the Burns Challenge Cup and also the Department of Agriculture trophy for butter competitions. Fine electrical appliances, including the Kelvinator, Westinghouse electric ranges, Stewart Warner radios, Premier Duplex vacuum cleaners are shown to advantage in the tastefully decorated stall of the Murphy Electric Company.

All articles in the display are set off by black paper with its flowered design which lines the exhibit. Particularly effective is the display of Malkin's Best products. These are shown in an exhibit enclosed behind a lattice fence over which are built arches supported by pillars.

The body of the exhibit is composed of pyramids and columns of tea packages and coffee tins. At the back of the stall are twisted streamers of black and yellow crepe paper which add a touch of color to the exhibit.

TEA ROOM
Throughout the week visitors have availed themselves of the facilities offered by the Daughters of England tea rooms, where teas and light lunches are served throughout the day. This refreshment stand is situated directly opposite the entrance to the Main Building and is decorated with red, white and blue bunting.

Vocational and technical advice is given to students wishing to take up courses in home study by John Wood, in the exhibit of the Canadian International Correspondence School. Here is shown much literature on the various subjects taught by the school. Mr. Wood explains the methods of the different courses to those interested and advises them to follow the lines for which they appear most fitted.

DEPARTMENTAL DISPLAY
At the beginning of the week crowds have admired the fine display of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. In it are shown sliding pictures of the different branches of agriculture followed in Canada. The entire exhibit is colored in a golden shade that is reminiscent of corn and wheat. Slogans of the department are printed in bold characters on the bases of the panels on which are shown the sliding pictures.

Another stall which has aroused considerable interest during the week is that of the B.C. Egg Pool. The management of the pool has selected eggs of various grades and is showing them to advantage in a small but tastefully arranged stall. The background of this exhibit is taken up by a poster indicating the growth of the organization.

Fine samples of flooring and inlaid woodwork is being shown by the Vancouver Island Hardwood Floor Company in the building. The display includes white oak, first grade maple and other varieties of hard wood are shown in this stall along with the various finishes used. Tabelets and other small articles complete the display.

Latest designs in the Beatty Washers are shown in this firm's exhibit in the same building. The machines are being demonstrated by competent assistants and have drawn much attention from those who have watched them work.

SHEARERS SHOW SKILL AT FAIR

George Brown First in Competition, C. Eccleston of Victoria Second

Showing their skill before a large audience in the grandstand, six veteran sheep shearers displayed their animals' warm coats in the shearing contest held at the fair yesterday afternoon. George Brown gained first award in the contest, while Charles Eccleston and S. Grossman gained second and third prizes.

different competitors, who straddled the captive sheep to keep them from breaking away. Different rules were read out by the committee in charge of the event and, with the exception of one, were received with indifference by the different animals. However, when the judge announced that high points would be given for the shearer leaving his sheep in the best-looking condition at the completion of the contest, the animal let out a derisive "ba-a-a" that drew roars of laughter from the spectators.

SAANICH STOCK RANKS HIGHLY

Winning the junior championship in the strongest class of bulls in the show, Captain E. F. Wright's Jersey yearling Babbacombe Sybilla Raleigh ranks as one of the outstanding animals on view at the fair. This animal, which was bred by H. E. Burridge, of Babbacombe, Royal Oak, comes from some of the best stock raised in the Province.

Its sire, Glamorgan Wexford Bindle, was shown two years ago by Mr. Burridge.

bridge in the Victoria and Vancouver exhibitions and carried off the first senior yearling, junior championship and reserve grand championship awards.

Following in the footsteps of its father Babbacombe Sybilla Raleigh took the junior championship and first prize in the junior yearling bull section.

In the two-year-old bull section, George's Fussy Fern Pedro, sired by Pedro of Beauchamp, and owned by Arthur Wright, carried off first honors in the two-year-old bull division.

Golden Fern's Beau, owned by J. Seath, is another Saanich animal that has gained high ranking, having taken first prize in the senior yearling bull class. Dave Beau Pedro adds further color to the list of fine animals on view in the list of fine animals of Babbacombe blood on view at the fair. This took second place in the two-year-old senior yearlings.

In addition to these feature awards, Saanich stockmen were awarded several second and third prizes in the dry cow sections.

Babbacombe Sybilla Raleigh had for dam the famous milch cow Brampton Draconis. This cow was for six years holder of milk records, having produced 52,701 pounds of milk and 2,810 pounds of butterfat during six years of 305-day periods.

Jasper Park Lodge, Aug. 23.—British Columbia boasted the honor of providing the only Canadian to reach the semi-finals of the Canadian amateur golf championship when the quarter-final matches were finished yesterday. Freddy Wood, young ex-caddie of the Vancouver Golf and Country Club, was the only player from the Dominion to survive yesterday's round, defeating Gordon MacWilliams, Calgary, Alta., 7 and 6.

In the semi-finals to-day Wood meets Eddie Held, New York, the medalist, who scored an easy victory yesterday over Frank Thompson, Toronto, 12 and 11. The other two semi-finalists are D. Clark Corkran, Noble Penn, who won over Jack Cuthbert, Edmonton, 4 and 3, and Gardner White, New York, who won a thrilling match from Fred Hoblitzel, Toronto, 1 up.

Should one of the United States players win in the finals, Saturday, it will be the first time in the history of the championship that the title has ever crossed the boundary. Since the championship was inaugurated two Americans have reached the finals, Bryce Hunter, of Boston, in 1914, and Wes Lammann, Columbus, Ohio, last year. Both were defeated by Canadians. However, public opinion favors Wood, but Held and Corkran are being picked as the finalists.

WOOD HAS EASY TIME

Although he failed to display the same brand of golf in the afternoon as his morning round, Wood had nothing to worry about yesterday as MacWilliams showed no improvement in his game whatever. Starting the afternoon round seven up, the Vancouver golfer maintained his advantage and ended the match on the thirtieth green to win 7 and 6.

In the morning Wood shot really brilliant golf, scoring a 72 for the round, composed of a 37 and 35. MacWilliams had an 83. Over the first 18 Wood had his putter working to perfection. His approach putts were dead to the pin, while on several holes he sank twelve and fourteen-footers. Wood was in trouble only on a couple of holes, but his recoveries were splendid. The first two holes were halved in four, Wood captured the next two, but dropped the fifth and sixth to let MacWilliams square the match.

GOES INTO BIG LEAD

The next two holes were halved in three and four, with Wood capturing the ninth with a three to become one up. From this stage Wood had complete command of the match. He won the tenth and eleventh to become three up. The twelfth was halved in three. The thirteenth went to Wood and his lead was four up. After halving the fourteenth, Wood got a par three on the "Bad Baby," while MacWilliams found a trap and took six to get down, putting Wood five up. Wood won the sixteenth and eighteenth to become seven up, the seventeenth being halved.

The first hole in the afternoon was halved in four, Wood sinking a twelve-foot putt. MacWilliams cut the lead to six up at the twentieth, when Wood drove his second shot into the trap, taking a six for the hole. When MacWilliams took four strokes to get on to the green at the twenty-first, Wood boosted his lead to seven up. The twenty-second was halved in three. At the twenty-third Wood went eight up by taking a five after MacWilliams had found a trap and took two to get out.

Wood drove his tee shot into the rough at the twenty-fourth, taking a five and losing the hole. At the short twenty-fifth MacWilliams laid up a lovely pitch for a par three, and Wood dubbed a three-foot putt for a half. The twenty-sixth was halved in five, Wood getting on to the green with a lovely shot from the side of a hill, below the hole. The twenty-seventh went to Wood with a par three, MacWilliams being forced to take five after finding the trap with his drive. This put Wood seven up with nine to play. The next three holes were halved and Wood was down to seven at the twenty-ninth.

The thirtieth was halved in four, ending the match.

QUICK FINISH

After he had gained the tremendous lead of ten up on his opponent, Thompson of Toronto, at the end of the first eighteen holes, Eddie Held made a quick finish of the match in the afternoon, ending it on the twenty-fifth green to win by the one-sided score of 12 and 11. Thompson, who was the last of the four former champions who qualified to be defeated was never in the game. Starting the afternoon round, Held captured the nineteenth hole with a birdie three (Continued on page 14)

Skipping the Surface At Forty Miles an Hour

A good action-picture of Jack Smith, in his "sea-flea," is shown here, with Jack driving. This boat will be one of several to go into action at the Cordova Bay Regatta next Wednesday. Several boys from Port Angeles are expected to enter the races, according to word received by George Russell, Cordova Bay Recreation Club, to-day. Mike Hopkins, who has done considerable outboard work in the town across the Straits, intimates that a number of speedy craft will be brought over, including one or two hydroplanes.

SOMERVILLE AND CARRICK TO PLAY IN U.S. AMATEUR

(By Times Staff Representative)

Jasper Park Lodge, Aug. 23.—Ross Somerville and Don Carrick, both of Toronto and two of Canada's outstanding golfers, will leave here Sunday en route to Pebble Beach, Calif., to take part in the United States amateur championship which opens there September 2. They will be accompanied by Don's brother, Alex, who also hopes to compete in the tourney. These three golfers have been here for the last week as competitors in the Canadian amateur championship.

Scores Are Low As Rain Washes Out Cricket Matches

Five C's Take Lead in Tournament by Downing Mushrooms; Vancouver and Victoria Play First Drawn Match, While Incogs Succumb to Okanagan on First Innings.

With the tournament-leading

Cowichans out of the series, Five C's went to the top yesterday in the Pacific coast championships by their victory over the picked-up team, the "Mushrooms."

The C's won from the Mushrooms by six wickets after the latter had put on a fair score in the first innings. The first drawn game of the series occurred yesterday when rain washed out the match between Vancouver and Victoria. Both teams scored 56 runs in their first innings, the bowlers having much the better of the play. Moisture prevented continuance of the match and it was declared drawn.

The Incogs went down before Okanagan's match featured also by surprisingly low scores. The up-country team scored 64 runs in their first innings to 47 for the Incogs. Okanagan went in for their second and had 117 for three wickets when stumps were drawn.

Armour Tops Classy Field In Western

Former U.S. Golf Champion Is Five Under Par in Opening Round

Nine Others Beat Par; Abe Espinosa Seems Out of Running

TOMMY ARMOUR

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 23.—Armour, erstwhile holder of the national open title, topped the field with a sparkling 65, five under par as 170 golfers from the east and middle west moved into the second stage of the battle for the western open championship to-day.

One stroke behind the Scot was Horton Smith, the blonde Joplin, Mo. sensation; two strokes to the rear of Smith were Gene Sarazen, dapper Italian from Flushing, L.I., and Dick Nelson, Indianapolis pro, who had 68's, while Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., open champion, Henri Cuclit, Stratford, Conn., Willard Hutchinson, Glenora, Ill., Bob MacDonald, Chicago, and Leonard Schmutte of Lima, Ohio, were trailing closely with par-breaking 69's.

So closely bunched were the favorites that the only probability was that a new champion was to be crowned at the end of the seventy-two holes of medal play. Abe Espinosa of Chicago, who won the crown last year, was exactly ten strokes behind Armour, and nothing but a miracle of golf could bring him back into the running. Score of 80 or better were good enough to land in to-day's flight. While tournament rules provide that the low 150 and ties can enter the second round, there were 149 under 79 and twenty-one tied for last place with 80's so they all crept in.

AGAIN TO PLAY FOR CANADIENS

HOWIE MORENZ

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Rumors circulated since his contract expired at the end of last season, that Howie Morenz, speedy centre of the Canadiens club in the National Hockey League, would be found with some other club during the coming year, were spiked yesterday when it was announced that Morenz had signed a new contract with the Canadiens.

THE HOME RUN PARADE

With Al Simmons and "Chuck" Klein still sojourning in the cool of the dugout, the four remaining members of the Big Six played into the hands of pitchers yesterday with the result that no batting average was lifted, while most of them descended. Babe Herman held his own, getting two out of five at Brooklyn, but Rogers Hornsby lost a point through getting two out of six. Babe Ruth and Jimmy Fox had to be content with one safety apiece and each lost a bit of ground, Ruth falling to last place behind the idle Klein.

You'll SEE the Difference

The real test of an oil is the condition it is in after it has run 1,000 or 1,500 miles.

Almost any oil will protect your engine for the first 500 miles . . . but what about the second or third 500? Is it oil you have in your crankcase, or just a thin watery skeleton of a lubricant?

Ask your garageman to show you the oil he takes out of your car. You'll certainly see the difference if it's Stermol. You'll be so satisfied you'll insist on the world's finest motor oil ever afterwards.

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

Chicago, Aug. 23.—The Chicago Tribune today says that there is more disposition to sell wheat on bulges, while sharp breaks meet buying support. Bearish sentiment is based on large stocks and limited export demand.

Grain opinions are: Jackson Bros.: Many longs are not inclined to enter the market until some of our surplus wheat is absorbed.

Thomson McKinnon: We suggest awaiting better evidence of stabilization in wheat.

Chalmers Grain Co.: We believe nothing but a calamity in Australia and Argentina will change the wheat situation materially to put prices up.

Stein Alstin: Probability is that all hard grains in grain will meet renewed liquidation.

Lamson Bros.: We expect more or less of a trading market in wheat for the present.

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Ltd.)

Winnipeg, Aug. 23.—The unexpected strength in Liverpool which closed to 2 1/2% higher when due lower wheat markets on this side a much better tone today, and prices at all times were substantially higher and on the extreme bulge were 3 1/2% above the previous close.

Chicago interests were again good buyers of wheat, May Winnipeg, while some locals were buying October against sales of December at 1c to 1 1/2c spread. There was also some short covering, and others were taking on wheat again after selling out the past few days. There was no particular pressure. Offerings were much less than on the past few days.

Direct exporters confirmed a moderate business overnight to the United Kingdom in three northern and lower grades, while shippers also reported a small business with a better tone to their cables. The demand for cash wheat was just fair locally, offerings extremely light and spreads unchanged to 1c better.

The weather in the west continues clear and temperatures moderately warm. Some of the line elevators report taking in new wheat, but buying very little. It is more than likely that hedging pressure will be very light this year.

The strength in Liverpool reported due to a better consumptive demand and the drought in Argentina, Brazil, and North American shippers were only 5,000,000 bushels for the week, while Argentine cleared 6,851,000 bushels and Australia 1,552,000 bushels. The market will likely hold firm for a day or two, but we believe wheat should be sold on further upturns.

Coarse grain: There was very little consumptive demand for any of the coarse grains, but all markets were higher in sympathy with the strength in wheat. Oats were forced out of the rut today by better speculative buying and the offerings were very light, while crop reports are very pessimistic.

Flax: This market followed the general strength. Trade volume light; no feature.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Wheat: Short covering, coupled with a little better commission house demand, due to the strong cables and reports of export sales gave the market a firmer tone today. Liverpool closed to 2 1/2% higher on the drought reported in Argentine. Conditions in that country show no improvement.

Shipments from Platte were heavy, however, at 8,661,000. Australia shipped 1,332,000 bushels, while North American clearances 5,045,000 bushels. The cash basis here was half to one and one-half higher, and Kansas City reported some export business, while the sales of domestic springs and hard winters were placed at 1,500,000. Clearances from this country for July were 13,575,000 bushels.

Canadian reports show that yields are about in line with recent estimates, and the weather in western Canada continues dry. Local receipts are estimated. Anticipations that the farm board would be something to help out the cash situation had some effect.

CHAPTER XLII

"Look what I found, wandering the streets disconsolately and looking as if he'd lost his best friend," John Curtis Morgan greeted his wife at five minutes to six.

His voice was so natural, so jolly, with just enough of an undercurrent of anxiety as to what she would think of his bringing an unexpected guest for Christmas dinner, that Nan sprang from the living-room couch and ran toward him.

"Willis Todd!" she cried joyously, incredulously, as the embarrassed young man who had once hoped to marry her guiltily followed his host into the room.

"You don't know how glad I am to see you, Willis! I've been intending for ages to be a very indiscreet wife and beg you to have luncheon with me."

"And now," Willis laughed, "your husband heaps coals of fire on your head by treating me as a family friend."

As soon as he had said it, Willis Todd realized that he had committed a faux pas. For his unconsidered words reminded Nan that he knew and that she knew of another "family friend" who had gravely betrayed John Curtis Morgan's hospitality. And so both he and Nan were blushing hotly as they shook hands, a fact which Morgan noted and puzzled over.

Then he must have remembered how he, blind to her love for himself, had once asked Nan when she was going to marry her faithful suitor. To cover his confusion he immediately became very voluble and jovial—mannerisms which set oddly upon his natural austerity. He was a dry, twinkling-eyed, downward-quicking-lip sort of humor, not the loud-laughing, boisterous kind which he now called to his aid.

"Yes, Nan, my defeated rival here was wandering along Washington Street, looking as disconsolate as if he'd just found out there wasn't any Santa Claus! So I brought him here to prove there is. Look at the Christmas tree, Todd! If it doesn't prove there is a Santa Claus—"

"Here's Estelle, John," Nan interrupted, "bustling with news about Christmas dinner. Just five minutes, Estelle, please. John, will you take Willis upstairs to wash his hands?"

"Sorry I'm not dressed, Nan," the young man apologized. "Mr. Morgan wouldn't give me time to go to my rooms—"

"I'm glad he didn't; I'd have had a fearful cook on my hands if he'd delayed the dinner," Nan laughed.

She waited until her husband and guest had disappeared up the stairs, then followed them fleetly, stopping at her own door near the head of the stairs. Since Willis Todd was to be present at the after-dinner opening of Christmas gifts, he should not be left out in the cold. There was a cravat she had bought for her husband and which she had decided to return, since, upon daylight inspection, its colors had seemed too vivid for his dark austerity. But it was exactly right for Willis Todd.

"Let John think I bought it for Willis in the first place," Nan grinned to herself. "I do believe he was a little jealous when he caught us both blushing. Let him be jealous; D him good!"

She wrapped the boxed tie with lightning speed, affixed "Merry Christmas" seals, tagged it with a card which read: "For auld lang syne. From Nan to Willis."

She found the two men waiting for her in the drawing-room, and obviously relieved when she joined them.

"I looked in on Curtis," Morgan told Nan, as they proceeded to the dining-room, which Estelle had decorated as lavishly as if she had been expecting a big party. "He seems better, doesn't he? I promised to bring his hot milk toast when we've finished dinner and stay with him while he eats it. Poor little tyke! He's braved for weeks of his turkey-and-dressing capacity and now he has to be content with milk toast. You couldn't relent a mite, I suppose, Nan?"

"No!" Nan looked very much the firm young mother. "Dr. Black has given orders and I'm going to carry them out religiously. But please don't let your sympathy for Curtis spoil your own appetite, dear. I hope you're both hungry. Wouldn't it be a joke on us if poor Willis was in the same fix as O. Henry's Thanksgiving martyr found himself—forced to eat a second holiday feast, while still in the agonies of indigestion from the first?"

"No, really!" Willis denied quickly. "It was exactly the sad young man that Mr. Morgan described. In fact, I was trying to decide whether to eat my if poor Willis was in the same fix as O. Henry's Thanksgiving martyr found himself—forced to eat a second holiday feast, while still in the agonies of indigestion from the first?"

"I like that!" Nan protested. "I suppose you've forgotten what you said last Christmas—that it was the happiest Christmas you had spent since you were a child. Remember how greedy we were and how nice the funny old waiter was, especially after you'd given him a $5 tip?"

"I remember," Willis Todd agreed, his mouth and eyes tightened with pain.

"I'm being beastly," Nan reproached herself. "I'm making John remember his last Christmas when Iris sat where I'm sitting now. And I'm hurting Willis, too. I didn't realize he still cared—so much."

But there was an unworthy consolation in the evidence of his pain and in the occasional puzzled glances from her husband's eyes.

Although the three of them had talked emphatically of how hungry they were, Maude O'Brien in the kitchen gloved resolutely at the returning dishes. There was little reward in cooking for love-sick people who pecked at their food, with no more appetite than canaries, as she grumbled to Estelle.

"Reminds me of last Christmas, when that Crawford man sat there and made eyes at the creature who was Mrs. Morgan then," Estelle whispered. "This Todd man is nuts over Miss Nan, and the poor dear mister looks like he's wondering if he's going to lose this missus, too."

"That was an exaggeration, but certainly John Curtis Morgan did not look like a happy man, between his old bursts of forced volubility, Nan, with an impenetrable suspicion of herself capable of, flirted openly with Willis Todd, and the burden of her conversation was, "And oh, Willis, do you remember when—?"

Modern Girls Display Energy Of Men in Sports

London, Ont., Aug. 23.—The Free Press, in an editorial headed "Women in Sports," mentions that a number of Western Ontario editors recently have been deploring the decline in sport and athletics.

"Whatever these editors may think about the boys and young men, they have to agree there was never a period in the world's history when girls and women were taking such active part in sports as to-day. They are fairly driving the men off the athletic fields."

It was not so many years ago that the most active participation of women in sports would be a gentle game of tennis, and then with their long skirts they would simply tap the ball back and forth. To-day they play tennis and golf with all the energy of men. But they are not stopping with these games; soft baseball, track athletics, bowling, almost every game has been invaded by the women; in England they are playing both lacrosse and football.

"The Victorian mothers would turn over in their graves if they could see the girls of to-day, garbed like men, running, hitting and throwing with all the vigor of the so-called sterner sex. The muscles of the girls of to-day seem to be changed. The old joke about not being able to throw straight will have to go into the discard. They throw on the baseball diamond with the speed and the accuracy of boys. They run bases and slide home with abandon and the courage of professionals."

"Rather Fishy"

Norman Hartnell introduces a fall Paris evening gown of black tulle of sophisticated line and feel which has narrow folds and finely pleated flounce swinging to floor length on sides and back.

Letters to the number of 160,000 were sent by air out of England last year, while the total weight of that country's airmails was about five tons. In America the airmails average 230 tons every month.

AMENDMENT AIMS TO KEEP FACTORIES IN UNITED STATES

The amendment is designed to break up this practice. It was urged on behalf of the American Federation of Labor and other workers in this country U.S. factories in Canada and Europe would be affected by the amendment if it should become law. Greek Parents Trick the Evil-Spirit.
There are strange customs on the island of Crete, where Venizelos, great Greek statesman, was born. He was the fourth child of the family. The other three had died as babies, and his family was afraid that he, too, might not live. They feared that there was some evil influence which brought ill luck to their children.
Therefore, his father carried him out and placed him on the side of the road, not far from home. Then a neighbor, who was in on the plan and who was watching, ran out and picked him up and brought the child to the Venizelos home.

The neighbor knocked at the door and said, "See this child I found left by the side of the road, with no one to care for it. Since you have no children, I have brought him to you, and thought you might be kind enough to take him in and bring him up."
"We will be glad to," said the father and mother, and they took the child from the neighbor's arms.
The child lived and grew strong and healthy, and all the superstitious neighbors believed that this was because the "evil spirits" had been foiled into believing that the child didn't really belong in the Venizelos home.
Venizelos, born August 23, 1864, became Premier of Greece and represented his country at the Peace Conference after the World War.

BEDTIME STORY
Uncle Wiggily And Lulu's Ribbons
Copyright, 1929, by McClure New-paper Syndicate.

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Lulu Wigglesworth, the girl duck, was doing the washing. Oh, I don't mean she washed the sheets and pillow cases and bed spreads and the like of that. No, indeed! Lulu was just doing a little washing of her own neck ribbons.

Being a duck, Lulu had feathers instead of hair and every day she would tie a ribbon of a different color around her neck. Her sister Alice did the same—not the same ribbons, of course, for Lulu had hers and Alice some of her own.

There is one other thing I must tell you about Lulu before I go on with the story. That is Lulu Wigglesworth was a sort of a Tom Boy, or, rather, I should say Tom Duck. Lulu liked to play with her brother Jimmie and his friends, Bully and Bawly No Tail, the frogs and Jackie and Peetle Bow Wow, the dogs. And in playing with the boys, waddling over the fields and through the woods, Lulu's neck ribbons often were soiled.

"So I'll just wash them all nice and clean to-day," said Lulu to herself one morning. And that's what she was doing now.

She had a little tub of suds

and in the clean soap and water Lulu soiled her neck ribbons about blue, green, yellow, pink, purple and red were the colors of Lulu's ribbons.
"Well, I guess they're clean now," quacked the little duck. "I'll wash a while. Now I'll hang them on the fence to dry."

There was a wire fence at the back of Lulu's yard. Tall, green grass and weeds grew near the fence, almost up to the top wire. But the top wire made a fine place to hang neck ribbons to dry.

"Well," said Lulu throwing away the washwater, "I'm glad that's done.
Now I'll take a little walk and maybe I'll meet Uncle Wiggily. And then my ribbons will be dry and I'll put on the red one—no, I guess I'll wear my pink one—or perhaps it would be better to wear the yellow one, though purple is a lovely color. Oh, dear! I don't know which ribbon to wear when they dry. I'll let Uncle Wiggily pick out the one he thinks looks best on me."

So Lulu put away her little tub and washboard and, leaving the blue, green, yellow, pink, purple and red ribbons to dry in the sun, she waddled over to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" called Lulu.
"Will you please come walking with me and tell me which looks best around my neck—a red, blue, green, pink or purple ribbon?"

"I think they all look nice," said the rabbit gentleman. "Wear them all, Lulu."

"Oh, I couldn't do that," she said with a laugh. "It would look funny, I can only wear one. So please come and pick the color for me."

"All right," agreed Mr. Longears. He hopped back with Lulu to the wire fence at the back of her yard but when they got there Lulu gave a sudden, "ad quack and cried:
"Look! Look!"

"What is it?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

To-morrow's Horoscope
SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1929

Sinister stars rule to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the horoscope certain threatening aspects.
It is a day exceedingly unfavorable to poise and balance of mind, a time in which to shut out all unpleasant or depressing thoughts.
Criticism of public men may be prevalent under this way, which is unfortunate for those who conduct government affairs.
Financial matters are well directed while this configuration prevails and should be most satisfactory to banks rather than to borrowers.
The planetary rule is read as most auspicious for advertisement of every sort. Newspapers and magazines should profit through new devices as well as enlarged business.
Those who seek employment would better wait until next week to make any sort of application. It is advertised by astrologers.
Warning is given to those who appear to be specially favored by the stars that they should avoid all appearance of egotism.
The tendency of women as well as men may be exceedingly selfish, individualism carried to its ultimate development may be apparent in all walks of life, the seers warn.
Deceit is supposed to be prevalent while this direction of the stars dominates.
Truthfulness may be less common even than it is under other planetary government.
Intrigue in social as well as political matters may be common under this configuration which seems to favor intrigue and even treachery.
Women should be especially cautious in their association with men, the seers declare, for they may be peculiarly susceptible to flattery while the rule of to-day dominates.
This is not a particularly lucky wedding day since it does not seem to preface constancy or undeviating loyalty.
Persons whose birthday it is may have a year of varied activities. For many great progress in social as well as financial affairs is forecast.
Children born on this day probably will be strongly intellectual. Many subjects of this sun are distinguished by nobility of character and love of humanity.
James Redpath, author, was born on this day in 1883. Others who have celebrated this as a birthday include Theodore Parker, 1810, noted reformer; Robert Herrick, 1591, poet; Joseph Buchanan, 1785, inventor.

"Don't tell me it's the Pipsiswah or the Skillery Shillery Alligator!"
"It might have been either one of them," quacked Lulu. "But they aren't here now. Only all my lovely neck ribbons are gone and I'm sure one of the Bad Chaps took them, or maybe it was Jimmie or one of the boys! Oh, where are my lovely ribbons?"

"Perhaps they fell down in the grass," suggested Mr. Longears. "We'll have a look."

Lulu helped him, but not a ribbon was to be found. They had all been taken off the top wire and the fence.
"Maybe they blew away," suggested Uncle Wiggily.

"No, I pinned them on tightly," quacked Lulu. "Oh, I'm sure it was one of those horrid boys. If it was my brother Jimmie I'll never quack at him again as long as I live! Never!"

She and Uncle Wiggily looked around some more but they could find no ribbons and then, all of a sudden, along came walking Aunt Lettie, the funny goat lady. In one hoof Aunt Lettie carried a bunch of red, green, blue, yellow, pink and purple color.
"See this lovely bouquet of flowers
I picked in your back yard, Lulu, my dear!" bleated the goat. "Aren't they pretty?"

"Flowers!" quacked Lulu in surprise.
"Why, those are my neck ribbons Aunt Lettie. Oh, how glad I am to get them back!"

"Neck ribbons, child?" bleated Aunt Lettie. "Dear me! I am so near sighted without my glasses that I thought your colored ribbons were flowers and I picked them for a bou-quet. Here, take them back and I'll get me some real blossoms. I haven't hurt your ribbons."

"Ha! Ha!" softly laughed Uncle Wiggily as Aunt Lettie skipped away.
"What a funny mistake." Then the bunny told Lulu to wear her red ribbon, which she did.

Now if the lightning bug doesn't burn a hole in the mosquito net and let those bad buzzers bite the baby's toes, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the butterfly.

Slave-trading still flourishes in the countries bordering on the Red Sea, some 2,000 slaves from East Africa being sold every year in the various Arabian markets.

AMAZON SEARCHED FOR RARE PLANTS TO AID FARMERS

 May Find Bug Killer; Also Hear of Vegetable Poison to Catch Fish

Rochester, Aug. 23.—A recent issue of the Rochester Alumni Review contains an article concerning the Smithsonian Institution, plant-hunting expedition which is now in the jungles of South America. This expedition is in charge of Ellsworth P. Killip, assistant curator of the National Herbarium, and a graduate of the University of Rochester. He is accompanied by Albert C. Smith of the New York Botanical Gardens and William J. Dennis, a Smithsonian collaborator.

After crossing the Andes from Lima, the expedition expects to plunge into territory which is practically unknown to the botanist. It is a country of dense jungles, of legendary narcotic and medicinal plants, and of primitive Indian tribes, from whom the explorers hope to gain much information. The expedition, according to Mr. Killip, is not specifically in search of any of the plants to which strange properties have been attributed, but desires to obtain as complete a collection as possible of all flora of the region for scientific identification. Previous American explorers have been interested primarily in plants with economic possibilities, and the specimens they have brought back have been worthless as laboratory standards.

MAY FIND BUG-KILLER
 So far as possible three specimens will be obtained of each plant—one for the Smithsonian collection, one for the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago and one for the Gray Herbarium at Harvard. There recently has been a great revival of interest in some of the plants of the region because of their potency as drugs, but before any extensive use can be made of them, it is necessary to secure an absolute botanical identification.

This is a land of potent vegetable poisons. There is one plant poison which for centuries has been used by Indians to poison fish. A small quantity placed in a stream is reputed to paralyze the fish and result in big catches. Recently it has been found that this poison has great value as an insecticide, and the Department of Agriculture is anxious to get a scientific description of the plant as it actually grows.

Here also is the deadly curare, with which the jungle Indians tip their arrowheads, and the slightest trace of which, getting into the blood stream, is supposed to cause death. This is a popular poison for writers of detective stories, but, according to Killip, very little is really known about it. He will keep his eyes open for the plant from which curare is derived.

Another almost legendary plant reputed in this region is known variously as dead man's vine, caapi, aya-huasca and elixir of courage. This is a growth. It is supposedly derived from the blossom stems of a jungle vine and recently has been the subject of some studies at Cornell University.

SAID TO GIVE COURAGE
 An early Spanish explorer, who experimented with it, reported that as soon as he had swallowed a small quantity his head began to swim and he felt deathly sick for a moment. Then his head seemed to clear up, and he had the blissful hallucination of sailing through the air over a pleasant countryside with farms, churches, villages and great cities spread in a beautiful panorama below him. This hallucination ended suddenly and he supposedly found himself in the midst of a forest beset by jungle beasts. He fought desperately to save himself—and then came to his senses, deathly sick.

The dead man's vine is used by the Indians as an elixir of courage, and is administered to warriors before battle. Used in the proper quantities its effect is said to remove entirely the fear of death, to endow the fighter with a reckless bravery, and to leave no bad after-effect, seemingly have the effect of splitting the personality. It has been used extensively in the incantations of the savage medicine men. Another Indian plant drug from the same region recently was reported from Berlin as a potent remedy for influenza, but scientists in Washington, largely because of the paucity of the collection, have been unable to identify it.

SEEK "MURPHY'S" GRANDFATHER
 The jungle Indians among whom Killip and his companions are going, have lived their own lives, cut off from the rest of the world, for many generations, and, while quite primitive have learned much about the use of the indigenous vegetation—particularly the medicinal value of various plants. Their stories of such values are expected to furnish clues for researches undertaken in this country.

The country also is supposed to abound in food plants. It may be the home of the original ancestor of the cultivated potato, which never has been identified. The potato already had spread far from its place of origin and become a domestic plant long before the coming of the white man. A great variety of wild relatives are reported in this territory.

LAST PERFORMANCE OF SIAMESE TWINS IN CITY TO-NIGHT

The all-too-short engagement of the Filipino-Siamese twins in Victoria will come to a close at the Coliseum Theatre to-night when the twins, their brides and a ten-piece Filipino band will take the stage at 8:30 o'clock. The entire company will leave on the midnight boat for Vancouver, where to-morrow a Panages tour will be commenced, which will take the twins down the Pacific Coast and to eastern Canada and the United States.

The vaudeville act which they are presenting in Victoria is the same as that which will be offered in the large cities of the continent during their tour, which will finish at the Chicago Exposition in 1933. The twins themselves appear in a number of acts, and roller skate, play musical instruments and dance. Their wives, dainty little Filipino maidens, appear in two numbers, a native dance in picturesque costume, and in a modern American costume, in which they perform with their husbands.

The Filipino band is worthy of special mention. The members are all talented musicians, and besides playing American instruments, give a null in which Filipino string instruments are used, the effect being splendid. Their modern jazz numbers are fine.

Hoot Gibson is at last afforded a chance to demonstrate his uncanny skill with a lariat in his latest Universal production, "The Lariat Kid," now showing at the Columbia Theatre. In several of his past pictures Hoot has done roping, but it was not until "The Lariat Kid" that he was called upon to extend himself. Reeves Eason directed the picture and the supporting cast includes Ann Christy, Francis Ford, Mary Foy, Cap Anderson, Walter Brennan, Andy Walron, Joe Bennett, Bud Osborne and Jim Corey.

 the story, now showing at the Capitol Theatre, has literally made screen history.
 Charles Brabin directed the production, in which cross sections of human lives are bared, then assembled to build up a central theme idea. The thrill of the wreck of the huge bridge, the majestic cathedral scenes and the fiery portrayal of Camille, the dancer, are highlights in the story.

The cast is a remarkable one. Lily Damita, Europe's dancing sensation, plays the strange dancer, and Ernest Torrence is seen in the role of Uncle Pio, and Don Alvarado and Duncan Hinaldo enact the twin brothers Esteban and Manuel in fine fashion.

YOUNG STAR HAS LEADING ROLE IN DOMINION PICTURE

 David Durand, noted as "Little Boy Blue of Radioland," has an important child role in "Innocents of Paris," Paramount's all-talking and singing picture, featuring Maurice Chevalier, now at Dominion Theatre.
 Master Durand's perfect voice secured for him the part in this picture after he was given an audition by the director, Richard Wallace. The lad, although but seven years of age, has memorized and delivers in excess of eighty poems and readings. He has been before radio audiences since he was two years old.
 The leading feminine role in "Innocents of Paris" is played by Sylvia Beecher, petite red-haired and grey-eyed star of the speaking stage.
 The scenes are laid in the picturesque Flea Market district of Paris and in a Parisian theatre and a gay cafe of the boulevards.

FAMOUS DIRECTORS PLAYED TOGETHER ON STOCK STAGE

When George Melford, director of the FBO production, "The Woman I Love," at the Playhouse Theatre, today, conducted a stock company in Salt Lake City some two decades ago, the actor who played the juvenile leads was James Cruze, now also a famous film director.
